TWO EUROPEAN SUBJECTS

To be Tried for a Murder Done in Clearfield County.

LETTERS ROGATORY FORWARDED.

Consul Schamberg Aids in Bringing Fugitive Huns to Trial.

A MESSAGE OF DEATH GOES BY MAIL

The eastbound mail train last evening carried a message of death, transmitted from the District Attorney of Clearfield county to far distant Hungary. Two lives will pay the penalty of murdering a fellow creature, the package containing letters rogatory, considered complete evidence by the Hungarian courts. The history of the crime for which two Hungarian subjects stand accused is familiar to the readers of THE DIS-PATCH. On the 14th of last February the friends of John Leging gathered to celebrate his wedding at a hamlet in Clearfield county. Hilarity lapsed into a free fight, in which Joseph Loksa received fatal injuries. The guests scattered hurriedly, two of them fleeing to Sceilvas Uzfalu, Hungary, Andrew Ivan and Stefen Toma did not escape the remembrance of the relatives of the murdered man, and letters passed between the two countries, finally resulting in the arrest of Toma and Ivan by the Hungarian authorities. They notified Clearfield county through Schamberg. His action in the case had from first to last been based upon his belief that extradition was sensational and cumbersome. The Hungarian authorities offered to try the case against the men, Toma and Ivan, out of a jealous

SENSE OF INTERNATIONAL HONOR, thus avoiding the expense and risk of extradition, and with the further provise that the evidence would be as carefully weighed there as if before a Clearfield county jury. This handsome offer was accepted by the Clearfield county authorities.

After considerable correspondence between S. V. Wilson, District Attorney of Clearfield county, and Consul Max Schamberg, in which the latter repeated with emphasis the motives of honor which had impelled the Hungarian authorities to undertake the trial of their subjects, District Attorney Wilson commenced the preparation of the "Letters Rogatory," as the official documents ars styled. The Clearfield peovery considerable sum saved to the county treasury, as the cost of extradition of the two men would have added a great deal to the usual expense of a murder trial. Consul Schamberg received the letters orgatory yesterday morning. They em-braced a complete record of the crime, in-cluding an attested copy of the indictments tound against Toma and Ivan; affidavits of the eye witnesses of the affair; several letters from Hungary attesting the flight of Toma and Ivan from Clearfield county, and a number of documents in the Hungarian tanguage having a bearing upon the case. BELIEVES THEY ARE CONVICTED.

The English portion of the document was translated into Hungarian by Consul Schamberg's attaches yesterday. After a careful examination of the papers Consul Schamberg said: "The history of the crime is very clearly presented in these documents, and I have attached my official seal to the mass of testimony which constitutes the letters rogatory.

"Will the Hungarian courts accept this testimony as final?" was asked. "Oh, yes. The home government of course accepts my indorsement of the matter, knowing that I have tamiliarized myself with the story of the crime. The evidence is so strong that there can be no doubt that Toma and Ivan will be executed. While the summary administration of Hungarian justice in this case is a sad affair, it shows clearly that the Austro-Hungarian Govern-ment is willing to go out of its way to aid in the maintenance of the laws that govern he relations of the two countries.

The letters rogatory were mailed last even-ing, and will reach their destination in the course of a fortnight.

FOR FELONIOUS ASSAULT. That is the Charge Made Against a Police man by a Man Whom He Shot-Steries of Both Sides-A Bad Case. Officers Shawl and Singer had an exciting time with several men whom they were attempting to arrest yesterday after noon. The former officer shot at a man and struck him below the hip. The wound is a a painful though not a fatal one; but the bullet could not be extracted. Officer Singer, it is alleged, clubbed his prisoner About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the attention of the Ricers was attracted to James Britton and Peter McGuire, who were annoying pedessrians in the neighbor-hood of 292 Second avenue. The former had a tov Flobert rifle, like those given away with purchases in some of the stores. Officer Shawl threatened to arrest him if he did not Shawl threatened to arrest him it he did not put up the toy; but the man paid no attention to him. Shawl then laid hold of Britton, when a scuffle ensued, in which the latter secured the officer's mace. According to the stories of bystanders, Britton started to run across the street, when the officer called to him across the street, when the officer called to him to stop. The request was unheeded; the policeman drew his revolver and fired, the bystanders say, three times. The first took effect in Britton's hip, the second struck a bystander on the top of the left car, and the third went in the air. The man struck on the ear is a Welshman, and resides on the Southside. He left word at the scene of the shooting that he would be at the hearing this morning to testify.

At the Central station several officials denied that there had been any shooting at all, though a charge was made to Inspector McAleese that Shawl was under the influ-ence of liquor when he shot.

Upon being shot, Britton was removed to his home in the rear of 292 Second avenue, where two physicians probed for the bullet, but could not find it. The Homeopathic Hospital ambulance was sent after the man; but his family objected to his removal. His father, it is claimed, is occupying a bed next to him, in a dying condition.

Britton's brother went before Alderman
O'Donnell last night and swore out a warrant for Shawl's arrest, charging him with felonious assault. Inspector McAleese went bail for the officer, and he was not locked

He refused to do it, and said no police-man could arrest him. I told him if he tried any crooked work I would shoot him, intending to scare him. He replied, 'Oh, intending to scare him. I can shoot as quick as you.' At the same time he put his right hand back to his hip and, thinking he was going to shoot me, I fired at him. The bullet hit him in the leg, and made only a flesh wound."

His idea is to utilize the interior of the building for a gallery, upon which the small wares may be sold. RULE OR RUIN RIOTS

Assault Men at Work AND DAMAGE LOTS OF PROPERTY.

Two Very Ugly Outbreaks at the United and Hecla Works.

THE SHERIFF COMES TO THE CALL A neatly-dressed, mild-mannered centleman-possibly, from his appearance, a bookkeeper or agent of one of the firms operating in the coke regions-came into this office last evening and said:

"I am no striker-not even a manual laborer or a trades union man-but I took a passive part in a riot to-day; carried a club and kept in the midst of the mob; all because I simply had to. It was a cokeworkers' riot—an ugly affair before they got through with it." The gentleman went on to explain that he was connected with one of the coke firms; that he was at Calumet yesterday forenoon; that a mob of 200 or more Hungarians was formed there; that he was told to pick up a good big club and join, or take the conse-quences, and that he avoided the latter. The mob was formed, it seems, because the men at several of the works had, of their own free will, accepted the 12 per cent advance in wages agreed upon three days ago, and resumed work before the notices could be posted or the Huns be gotten together to resume at other works. Those still idle persisted in believing there MUST BE SOMETHING WRONG in the others' resuming, and made up their minds to stop it. Hence the formation of the Calumet mob shortly before noon. The gentleman's own short story of the rioting that followed may safely and properly be given, without his name, for he was in the midst of it, carrying a club, as he had to, and saw everything:

"The infuriated foreign workmen from Calumet were soon joined by about 250 others from Mammoth, and proceeded to the works at United, Hecla and Mutual to the works at United, Hecla and Mutual to stop the men who had at those places resumed work. I had to go with them to United; and what I saw was rough in the extreme. They assaulted two ash-cart drivers, beat them over the heads till they were all but unconscious, and almost killed the stable boss. I picked him up, and went to assist him home; but they made me quit. They smashed all the windows in the buildings here and all the oven doors, and then marched on 300 or 400 strong to Thaw & marched on, 300 or 400 strong, to Thaw & Dorsey's Heela works, where they raised the worst and most damaging riot of the lot. I know about what the results at Heela are; but if, as you say, you already have the story of an eye-witness from there, you'd better take up his account just here, where mine leaves off. I was told the manager at the United had sent for the militia."

Before the arrival of the gentleman who spoke as above, another, a professional man, had come into this office to tell of what he had seen at Hecla. It is obvious why neither his name nor that of the other informant can be published—neither of them feels that he would again dare to venture into the region. The story of the gentleman from Heela follows in its order:

THE STORY FROM HECLA. "The men who came over from Morewood —all foreigners, and mostly Hungarians—drove over 300 men from the Hecla Works, drove over 300 men from the Hecla Works, shut off the steam in the engine, clubbed Chief Engineer Jack Green away and nearly killed him. They were all armed with clubs and coke slats, and Green was besten over the head and all cut up. Two others were also dreadfully injured—one, the blacksmith at the works, and the other a yardman. Then the rioters broke the engine valve, which stopped the cars running up and down the shaft, and began flooding the mine with water. Three men in the mine, to escape with their lives, had to ascend the shaft on ladders. As they did so, one by one, they no sooner got away from death by drowning in the mine then they were belabored by the rioters until laid aside, helpless. The mob rioters until laid aside, helpless. The mob threw all the larries off the tracks, dumped a bale of hay and a lot of wheelbarrows down the mine shaft and choked it effectually for at least a week to come, smashed windows, broke oven doors and finally cleared out, leaving evidences of the worst two hours' work I have seen in a long while. "You want to know the cause of all this?

Well, the 12 per cent advance had not yet been given or conceded at Morewood, and the foreigners wouldn't passively let any other works enjoy it or its fruits."

AS TOLD BY WIRE.

Westmoreland's Sheriff Responds to a Call-How the Huns and Other Foreigners Scattered Before He Came.

The story of these ugly outbreaks, as it omes from the coke regions, is told in special telegrams received at midnight. From Greensburg comes this one, telling about the Hecla riot: This afternoon, about 3 o'clock, a desperate riot was inaugurated at the Hecla Coke Works.

The miners and drivers at the Mammoth works, owned by J. W. Moore, organized a mob numbering 400 or 500 men. They proceeded to Fisherdale and then to United, and at each place they compelled the workmen to join them, and going to the Hecla works of William Thaw, war was, opened up on the workmen there. There were then in the mob about 700 men. The men at work were set upon by the infuriated mob, and some of them were terribly beaten. The wagons were thrown down the shaft. Three men coming up in a cage were struck by one of the wagons, and they were all, seriously hurt. One of them had a pick driven through his shoulder; another was ingriven through his shoulder; another was injured about the head, and both will die. The larries were thrown from the tracks a distance of 50 feet, and broken to pieces. The buildings were attacked and the windows broken and men, women and children fled for their lives. Word was sent here to the Sheriff calling for assistance. Deputies were dispatched to the scene, but when they had arrived there the men had cooled down considerably. The damage to the property is great.

The mob was composed of Huns, Italians and Americans. All the men at the works in that neighborhood went to work this morning, except the ones at Mammoth, and the refusal of J. W. Moore to pay the advance caused the men to sinaugurate the war. The stable boss at Mammoth was set upon by a party of Huns and beaten until nearly dead. J. W. Moore said to night that he could not possibly pay the advance. "Unless the price of coke advances, to run under the new schedule of prices would be to lose money," said he.

Then there was thus special from Connellsjured about the head, and both will die. The

Then there was this special from Connells ville, giving later details:

Then there was this special from Connellsville, giving later details:

When the Sheriff and his posse went to Moyer this afternoon to arrest the rioting.
Huns, they found none in sight. The posse, however, surrounded the houses in the valley and intended to arrest every Hun in the houses. They found but two. They were placed under guard at Squire Murphy's office. The posse then went up the hill and arrested two more.

Word was received that Huns, to the number of 150, were entrenched behind a stone fence, armed with pistols, knives and clubs, were awaiting the comming of the officers. The men separated and surrounded the unruly for eigners. When they came within 75 yards of the Huns, fire was opened upon the officers.
It was returned promptly, and the Huns broke and rau. No one was burt on either side.
Sheriff Miller collected his men and formed a plan of action. The Huns were meantime out of sight, and the officers started toward Morgan station, where it was learned the Huns had collected. On the way through fields and over hills, the posse was fired upon several times by hiding Huns. When the men arrived at Morgan station they found the Huns in their rendezvous, the souphouse. After parleying a while some of the rioters came out and fired upon the officers, who were on a bluff overlooking the house. At this time it cannot be learned if any person in either party was injured. They were still fighting at the last report.

The Huns are well armed with revolvers and knives and some have muskets, They are de-mined to resist arrest, and considerab able is anticipated in dislodging them fro ir stronghold. A. C. Duncan, the office aulted by the Huns this morning, was bad trouble is anticipated in dislodging them from their atronghold. A. C. Duncan, the officer assaulted by the Huns this morning, was badly cut about the face by the stones thrown by the rioters. The bone in one of his legs was almost broken by a large club wielded by one of the Huns. Neither Shrum nor Franks, the other officers, were injured.

No cause can be assigned for the action of the Hungarians in first assaulting the workmen at Coalbrook. After the scale had been fixed at the conference at Everson, the matter was interpreted to them, and they appeared perfectly willing to resume work, but no sooner had the English-speaking miners started to work than the Hungs broke out. They have been drinking all the time during the strike, and, to-day when they resisted arrost by the posse were wild with liquor. The four Huns arrested ai Mover were taken to Uniontown this evening. They acted as if they expected to be rescued by their countrymen, but were easy to control until just before boarding the train. They then attempted to escape, and very nearly succeeded, as the guard was not large.

Another correspondent from Scottdale gives an account of the trouble at Moyer and the Morgan works as he obtained it. His telegram follows:

From information just received, which is believed reliable, the following is a correct statement of the trouble as far as can be learned:

The Hungarians at Moyer Works, of W. J. Rainey, heard that the Fort Hill Works, of the same company, were working, and they started in a body to take them out, not having understood that the strike was settled on their route. When they came to the Morgan plant of the H. C. Frick Coke Company where the men had resumed work, the men of the Morgan works as soon as they discovered them approaching fled in fright. Some of the men, it is reported, was roughly bandled, and the sheriff was wired for. He arrived on the scene this afternoon and the informant states was industrious ly engaged in searching the soup house, a somewhat notorious resort for Huns at Sherric k confirmation. From what can be learned the report of riot From what can be learned the report of riot at Moyer station arose from the fact of the township constable attempting to arrest some Huns for alleged liquor selling at that place, and was roughly handled, but this had no connection with the strike.

A large meeting of the Standard miners was held at Mt. Pleasant to-day. Resolutions were passed condemning the riotous actions of the Huns at Bessemer and Alice yesterday, and they voted to a man to resume work on Monday morning. The Central employers also held a like meeting, and took this same action. Applications have been received by the organizers of the K. of L here to organize over 30 new assemblies of the order in the coke region, but according to the laws of the order it canuot be done while any trouble exists at any works in the region. It is safe to predict an increase of 4,000 members to National Trades Assembly 135 in the next 60 days.

QUIET AT KEATING. Carrie Furnace Strikers Are Quite Peace

able Now-The True Story of Friday's Disturbance. A trip was made to Keating station

the B. & O. line yesterday evening to as-certain the true state of affairs at the Carrie furnace. There was no sign of disturbance in the neighborhood, and the deputy sheriffs were smoking on the porch of their shanty. They reported a complete cessation of hostilities. The affair has resolved itself into an ordinary strike, and as soon as the men get their price they will go to work again. Several of the men were seen, and all attacked the sub-sheriffs bitterly, blaming them for Friday's disturbance. It is said them for Friday's disturbance. It is said that when the names of the rioters were called, each man stepped forward without hesitation and gave himself up; but only on the strict understanding that he was to be tried in his own township, the officers agreeing to bring them before 'Squire Laury, who lives on the outskirts of Braddock. When the party reached the 'Squire's office the officers asked the men to go up to Braddock and have a drink. They up to Braddock and have a drink. They proceeded to a saloon and there the men got into a semi-intoxicated condition, the officers paying for everything that was drank, and encouraging the prisoners to drink. Then they announced their real intentions, and brought the men to the railway station. Some lookers-on cried out to the prisoners that they were being bamboozled. The prisoners, considering themselves aggrieved, made an attempt to get free. Hence the riot.

The house of George Morrison, near 'Squire Laury's, where several of the prisoners boarded, was visited. Mr. Morrison says he offered to bail two of the prisoners day before yesterday, but was refused. He then journeyed to Pittsburg, where he re-awed his offer vesterday morning and was again refused. He claims an atthe riot, and a warrant was drawn up for his arrest. He, however, beat a retreat. The men complain of the sensational stories published in the evening papers about their hostile intentions. No one was prevented from going near the furnace hough some were

THE SNAKE AND THE SLEEPER.

A Postoffice Messenger, Wears a Scar an Tells All About It. A messenger in the Allegheny Postoffic bobs up with a genuine and well-authenticated snake story—genuine because the boy has the snake-bite to show. Torrance Kyfeldt, one of the special delivery boys, was given a 15-day vacation last Monday, which he proceeded to enjoy at Latrobe. While reclining in the grass, half asleep, Tor-rance felt a savage bite on his face, just below the left car. Springing up he saw a black-snake in the grass near him. Like any well-regulated messenger boy, Torrance travels with a pistol. Hastily pulling it out, he fired at his snakeship. The shot infuriated the "pesky varmint," and he wriggled toward Torrance, who fired once more, the second shot doing the busimess.

Mr. Snake measured six feet long, which is doing pretty well for an ordinary every-day black-shake. The boy rushed to a local doctor, who applied remedies which averted whatever danger lay in the bite. The youngster is now nursing his bite at his home in Pleasant Valley.

A time came when the Young Men's Mercantile Library Company did not find it expedient to assume the obligation to pay 6 per cent etc., spoken of above. It didn't earn it. The Library Hall Company and the Young Men's Mercantile Library and Mechanics' Institute are separate organizations, and the question that arises is what legal action is there that can relieve the legal action is there that can relieve the hall company from its chartered obligations to provide a home for a library and the diffusion ot public education? There is a reference in the minutes of a There is a reference in the minutes of a meeting held in February, 1871, to an agement made or proposed to be made between the two companies. I have heard it said the agreement was that the Hall Company was to manage the buildings as trustee for the Young Men's Mercantile Library Company. This agreement was subject to ratification by the stockholders. I do not know whether it ever was or was not ratified. The only thing I could find was a minute that such an arrangement had been agreed upon. AS TO POWER TO BORROW. "The eriginal company was only allowed to borrow to the extent of its capital stock which was $104,000. It borrowed from the Sanitary Fair and, from the West Penn Hospital and this mortgage of $30,000 is certainly in excess of what it was originally allowed to borrow and thus is the one that is foot bosh, while the other has but an 18-foot bosh. The one scale cannot in justice be applied to both furnaces.

The men are determined and say they will The men are determined and say they will allow no one to go to work until an agree-ment about both furnaces is made. They offered no resistance to the arrest of some of the strikers yesterday, and declare they will not interfere with the law. Their con-dition, they declare, has made them desperallowed to borrow and this is the one that is being foreclosed. There is a question in my mind as to whether the Hall Company had a right to give a third mortgage. The two companies act independently of each other. I think the Young Men's Mercantile Library Company can stay these notwith-standing the sale by the Sheriff."

Continuing the search another member was found who said he believed some people were made trustees and that they acted withwere made trustees and that they acted without authority and never made a report, as he held that the loan could not be made without the approval of the Library Association, and he said the third loan was illegal because it exceeded the amount of indebtedness allowed $10,000. He supposed, however, that equity might enforce payment up to the amount allowed by legislative enactment. He further said the lines were relaxed in the days when the Legislature was laxed in the days when the Legislature was untrammeled and did legislative job work for any one who wanted it and was willing to pay for it. He said he didn't know of any improper influences to get the limit ex-tended, in fact didn't believe there were

THINKS IT MIGHT PAY. This gentleman made an arithmetical cal-culation to show that he could rent the building so as to make it more than selfsupporting, and rather more than half init-mated that the management hadn't em-mated that the management hadn't employed its talent, or talents, to the best possible advantage, possible as the taxes were light on account of the character of the institution. He thought Mr. Brunot might possibly be partly submerged in the soup.

Still another member of the Mercantile Library Association said: "There will be onite a story in this matter when those who quite a story in this matter when the e working it up are through, but I don't feel like saying anything at present."

From all that can be learned some interesting information may be expected by and by, but for reasons best known to themselves nearly all the people interviewed refused to tell all they knew, and made it a condition precedent to talking that their names should not be used.

The Sisters propose to use the phonograph in elocution; music, both vocal and instrumental; singing, and extempore speaking. The phonograph seemed to magnify defects, so much so that where perfection and beauty passed almost unnoticed, the defects became glaring. It will be a study to the acoustic sharp to explain why one does not recognize his own voice and unmercifully criticises it as it comes from the phonograph. It is said to be due to the loss of certain harmonies in the phonograph. It is confidently believed by Alleghenians that the Bayne-Quay coalition will have enough influence with the Congressional Committee on Appropriations to secure a sum amply adequate for the proper provision of a Government building belitting the importance of Allegheny as a city and as a postal branch of the United States mail graph. It is said to be due to the loss of certain harmonies in the phonograph.

The visitors spent a few moments in examining the academy buildings and grounds. The academy proper is a massive brick building, and is undoubtedly the most handsome structure in Westmoreland county. Handsome statues, donated by Fathers G. G. Grace and James Cosgrave, adorn the ground. In the art gallery is the statue which was saved from the Sisters' building in Johnstown, when the flood came service. Mayor Pearson has been requested to call a public meeting to consider the situation, but stated last night that he had decided to consult Colonel Bayne before taking any action, as the upholding of Artemus Ward's ideas about "the old flag and an appropriation" has from time im-memorial been one of the constituent cares building in Johnstown, when the flood came upon them. There are also a number of pictures in the gallery, which had been, painted by Johnstown pupils who went down in the flood. of the local Congressman. It is certain, however, that an active reagitation of the question will be begun within a few days. Of the former efforts in this line, the work of a special committee appointed jointly by Mayor Pearson and City Councils in the early part of last year, was the most energetic, and it is believed that failure to secure an appropriation was only due to the istory of the Grand Council of the Indefacts that the administration was Demo-cratic, and that Hon. S. J. Randali, chairpendent Sovereigns of Industry was held last evening in the Moorhead Building, man of the Committee on Appropriations in the last Congress, tendance was large and there was a con-tinual fight from the beginning to the end of WAS ILL AND ABSENT from Washington at the time of the Alle-gheny committee's visit to the capital to the session.

The fight started over the representatives of Southside Council No. 7 and Economy Council No. 13. The officers of these councils had not been installed by the Grand President, and he decided that their gheny committee's visit to the capital to urge the expediency of an appropriation.

The committee of last year embraced the cream of Allegheny business men. Mr. John H. Hampton was chairman, and Robert Dilworth was secretary, and a considerable amount of enthusiasm was engendered at the several meetings. Among those who Grand President, and he decided that their representatives were not entitled to a vote in the grand body. He admitted that Economy Council had notified him when their officers were elected, but he forgot to attend the weeting to install them. He claimed able amount of enthusiasm was engendered at the several meetings. Among those who went to Washington to urge Allegheny's claims were the following gentlemen: Postmaster Swan, James B. Scott, James L. Graham, Samuel Watson, M. Harman, Arthur Kennedy, John A. Myler, E. Wertheimer, James McFarland, W. D. Moore, Julius Groetzinger, William S. McKinney, and the late William Semple and James E. Crow. So certain was the public that some tangible result would be attained, that a very heated controversy Southside Council had not notified him.
The fight was long and warm, as the law does not provide that the Grand President shall be notified. The representatives were shall be notified. The representatives were allowed to remain.

The next fight was a short one, and resulted in an indefinite postponement of the consideration of the proposed new general law, which was claimed to have been presented in the interest of the grand officers.

The Grand Secretary, D. B. Wood, resigned his office, and Samuel Harper was elected to fill the unexpired term. William Anschutz was elected Grand Treasurer in ittained, that a very heated controvers arose as to the most expedient site for the new building, but the refusal of Congress to that a change for the better be made. At the time the former memorial to Congress was prepared by the special committee the statement made by Postmaster Swan showed the Allegheny postoffice yielded a net revenue of $32,000 per annum; that an angual busi-ness of $450,000 in round numbers was done, and that every postoffice inspector who had examined the postoffice during the last 12 years had professed astonishment at the amount of business crowded into the small space. A most convincing array of statistics was presented regarding the general growth of Allegheny City, unfortunately without weight in the eyes of a Democratic national administration. It is now generally felt that the Republican administration should be urged to give to Allegheny a building commensurate with her needs. Postmaster Swan stated to me the other day that the postoffice would do a business far in excess of $500,000 in the current year. There are so many arguments in favor of a excess of $500,000 in the current year. There are so many arguments in favor of a Government building, and the possibility of a successful ending of a popular movement for it is now so promising that I hope to stir up a feeling which will result in success. Colonel Bayne is now and always has been heartily in favor of the plan, and I shall see him next Monday at his summer residence in Bellevue and secure his valuable convertion." ble co-operation."

The announcement of a series of what have become familiarly known as harvest excursions, to be run by the Chicago and Northwestern Railway during the months of August, September and October, will be joyfully received by a large number of our readers who are becoming interested in those portions of the wounderful Northwest, reached by this great railroad and its connections. Topographical and sectional maps, accompanied by vivid descriptions and voluminous crop reports, are excellent mediums for awakening the interest of home seekers in a new country, and these, supplemented by opportunities placed within the reach of all for visiting the country at a season when exact demonstrations can be made of its merit, give convincing evidence of the fact that the Northwestern Company has sufficient faith in the regions traversed by its lines, to extend unusual facilities for all to go and see for themselves.

The excursions will be five in number, and will leave Chicago August 6 and 20, Sentember 10 and 24 and October 8. Ticks.
